3rd Violent Death for Church
This Year in Mid-South area

Evening Star Methodist Baptist Church ran with the emotional blood, sweat, and tears of children and adults as 45th and Clenham block youth and gang violence pain continues in the community unabated.

Two hundred people, half of them children, mourned and placed red roses in the coffin of Joe Louis Orr, a 9-year-old boy was eulogized by Reverend O.C. Morgan and others at Evening Star Methodist Baptist Church.

Five people have been charged with Orr’s murder.

According to the funeral director Linda Moore-Porter, Arnold A. Woods Memorial, it was the church’s third funeral for a youth slain in violence within the past two months.

“These folks are going crazy out here,” said Moore-Porter. “A few months ago H. Commerce, who was shot as he entered church.”

As pictures of political candidates adorn the church’s wall, the young, the old, and the innocent, silently and unseeingly mourned Orr who was dressed in a blue suit and a white teddy bear cradled his lifeless body in the baby-blue with brass handle casket.

“You may be quiet. But even if you are quiet, don’t forget to pray for this family,” said Reverend Morgan. “I have never seen a mother bear so much pain as I’ve seen this mother bear.”

Rev. H. Goodall, candidate for Attorney General, present at the services said, “The children here today are too young to look into the face of death.”

“I have not studied hard enough for the sergeant exams. That’s institutional racism.”

Rush continued to say, “Daley is responsible for many health centers closing down while health problems rise in the city.”

"No More Fast Food Restaurants on 35th St."

By Rosalind Blackburn
SSJ Writer

A recent open community meeting at the Indiana Pentecostal Church, 3520 S. Indiana, discussed proposed plans of Checkers Restaurant to pen a fast food facility at the former site of Alco Drugs, 35th & King Dr.

Currently, there are 15 fast food restaurants between State Street, and Cottage Grove. About 125 residents, business owners, and neighborhood developers who attended the meeting are against opening another fast food drive-thru establishment. When asked for a show of hand for those in favor of building a Checkers, not one hand went up.

Steven Redfield, head of the Mid-South Planning and Development Comm., said "we don't need another junk food pit stop here."

According to Ben Ollewalle, representative for Checkers, the new restaurant "will have 24-hour security, an outside clean-up every 15 minutes, and will provide 100 new jobs."

"A person with a high school diploma will be able to earn $30,000 to $35,000 per year in five years as a manager," said Ollewalle. The community did not care. Residents suggested constructing a job training center, a dress shop, a drug store that doesn't sell liquor, and a Radio Shack.

Chicago Black United Communities, Chairman, Lu Palmer said, "we don't want you and we are prepared to do everything necessary to see that you fail."

When Ollewalle said all documents and contracts to secure the location had been signed with a 30 to 45 day period for Checkers to back out of the agreement, someone in the audience offered to purchase the property from the Checkers franchise. Ollewalle declined the offer.

The meeting was sponsored by the Douglas Development Corp., the 35th St. Merchants Association, the Mid-South Planning and Development Commission and Aid. (2) Madeline Haithcock.

During a follow-up meeting on August 17 at the Hartwell United Church, it was revealed that Checkers had solicited three other locations at 95th & Stony, 87th & King Dr., and a westside area prior to selecting the 35th & King Dr. spot. After strong opposition from the communities Checkers were forced to back down and selected their present location.

Aid. Haithcock (2) is holding a Zoning Hearing on the proposed site at 10 a.m. today (Aug. 25) at City Hall, Room 201 A.

21st Century will Monitor CTA Jobs Without City Contract

A spokesman 21st Century VOTE says that contract or no contract, the group will continue to monitor hiring on the CTA Green Line construction project, even if it means working gratis.

In a reversal of a policy some commentators called a gambit to pacify Chicago's street gangs for the upcoming 1996 National Democratic Convention in the city, Mayor Daley and City Council figures managed to remove 21st Century VOTE from a controversial contract providing $500,000 city funds to continue on page 11.

Hooks: What does Commissioner of the Water Reclamation District mean and how can the average person relate to it?

Gardner: The Water Reclamation District is a sewage treatment agency for 5.5 million people. Every home and business in Cook County. Consequently, the sewage is purified to remove impurities from sewage and dispose of the chemicals. We need to provide safe and clean water, and to protect Lake Michigan which is our water source. It is a 7-day week, 24-hour operation. Our cooks are paid and handled if not properly treated, diseases such as dysentery and cholera will manifest. The same is as occurring in Rwandan communities.

A commissioner is responsible for the district, passing ordinances, approving budgets, hiring and firing of personnel. We are commissioners and we are sort of watch dogs for the agency.

Hooks: Is it true that you have a health problem?

Gardner: I did have a health problem. I had gall bladder surgery in May of this year. I have made a 100% recovery, am at the peak of health according to my doctor, and 20 lbs. thinner.

Hooks: What is your relationship with T.W.O.?

Gardner: Most recently I was manager of the T.W.O. Annual Conference. My relationship with T.W.O. goes back to 1970. As a T.W.O. Community Organizer, I spent 10 years of blood, sweat and tears working in Woodlawn. During that time I worked with tenant unions and black clubs to address the deplorable conditions. Many of the apartment buildings were in bad shape. Abandoned landlords were selling the buildings for profit...making no repairs. The population was 90% African-American lower income working class black. There were 60,000 residents, most of them 2 parent families.

Hooks: What was the problem?

Gardner: In 1971 I helped organize a demonstration at City Hall, attacks were in effusion. We took live and dead rats to City Hall with many other types of vermin. The following day scads of inspectors appeared and violations were issued like never seen before.
Mayor

Responds on CHA Tenant Representation

(Letter to the Mayor published in South Side Journal on July 21 is issue by John DeVaughn, Co-Chair Coalition Statewide Housing Action Coalition)

Dear Mr. DeVaughn:

Thank you for writing and expressing your concern regarding resident representation on the CHA Board of Directors.

I urge you to continue your discussions with the CHA and others to expand opportunities for residents to participate meaningfully in CHA policy-setting. I know these discussions are ongoing. At the same time, I believe we all appreciate that the CHA Board has been hampered for some time in its ability to undertake its important work because of continuing vacancies on the Board which makes assembling a quorum extremely difficult.

Looking forward, I remain hopeful that a way will be found to improve further the mechanisms designed to foster true resident participation in CHA matters.

Good luck in your ongoing work.

Sincerely,
Richard M. Daley
Mayor

Mr. DeVaughn Goes to Washington

Dear Editor:

I had the opportunity to go to Washington D.C. in May at the request of ACORN. There were three busloads of acorn members from Chicago making the trip. Left that we needed an organization that would work targets youth under 17 years of age. Unless improperly supervised or in a work setting, the child should not be outdoors or in a public setting after 11:30 and 6:00 pm on Friday and Saturday. It should be 10:30 and 6 year and under.

This is a good enforcement.

It's sad it takes the police to do it. The alternative is prevention of a violent act. The neighborhood where the child lives by the people in the community. Gangs must be part of the problem. United Nations Peace Corps 21st Century. VOTE, G.D., V.O. or whatever. They must enforce the curfew as well. Since a lot of them are under 16 years of age, then this would make parents job a lot easier and avoid the youth looking at the police for right and wrong.

In the good old days, when I lived in Robert Taylor Homes, the police came on every youth, 16 years and under, rush to their floor to hear their name called out by their mother. If we pretended not to hear mama call, some adult, or older youth like Mickey C, Smokes, Big Harry, or Shaleky would tell you that your mama is calling and you yet you're up stairs before I kick it. Did we respect? No but we did because we respected the authority of the same way kids can respect authority today. Rather it was Mama or Daddy, the big brother, police, the gang leader. The authority of youth must enforce the curfew.

The Chicago police has recently put into place a pilot program aimed at cracking down on curfew violators. It targets youth under 17 years of age. Without properly supervised or in a work setting, the child should not be outdoors or in a public setting after 11:30 and 6:00 pm Friday and Saturday. It should be 10:30 and 6 year and under.

Freedom Now Center Celebrates 1st. Anniversary

In August 1993, the Freedom Now Center (FNC) opened its doors as a community-based service agency. Located at 64th and Cottage Grove, FNC is in a good location to offer assistance to Woodlawn residents. Operating on a shoestring budget, the Center is partially funded by the Lutheran Child and Family Services.

FNC founder and executive Director Dino McNeal, grew up in Woodlawn and watched the neighborhood deteriorate over the years. No matter how successful McNeal has become, he always kept in mind that no matter how successful he became, he'd never turn his back on the community. By starting up the Freedom Now Center, McNeal has plans for making it an information clearinghouse that people can go to to deal with various problems.

FNC concentrates on three areas:

- Legal - The FNC staff can help people with legal matters that can often be handled without a lawyer-like five day notices for non-payment of rent, traffic violations, and employment-related problems.
- Housing - The FNC staff tries to put potential tenants and available housing together. The FNC staff also helps renters apply for the Renters Assistance Program, which is a federal program for people who are about to be evicted or who have been threatened with having their utilities (gas and light) shut off. You can also apply for the Westerheitz Program—now available all year-round.
- Employment - The FNC staff can help people who are out of work find part-time, full-time or temporary jobs. They can also work on your resume too. The FNC also provides technical assistance for arts organizations with flyers that are distributed by the Cultural Affairs Public Art Program.

In its first year, the FNC staff has seen more than 1,000 people and has been able to help many of them with referrals, advice, information, and active, hands-on support.

The Center advertises its activities and services with flyers that are distributed by volunteers throughout the neighborhood. McNeal says his plans for 1995 include to have the Center operate full-time—five days a week, with a full-time, paid staff. Tillman) to find a viable prospective developer; we always look for community support for a project, and we use the alderman to gauge that support," said Hill-

Tillman had rescheduled an Aug. meeting with the Department of Housing for Aug. 18, so that the results were not known as the South Street Journal went to press.

"No real decision has been made as to who, and if, the property will be developed," said Hilsop. "It will not be transferred withou-

According to Kessel the building at 400 E. 43rd Street was owned by Carl Fox until his death in 1958. It was owned by a trust until that trust went bankrupt in the 1970s, and the property has been delinquent since that time.

Suspicious Fire

"That building's been on fire a number of times," said a neighborhood resident.

Another resident joked, "that building is owned by the Capone family."

"It's a beautiful structure, and, like all buildings of historic structure, its develop-

Department said the August 10 fire destroyed a great portion of the building and they are waiting to determine its safety to the public.

According to a spokesperson from the fire department, the fire, which was started on the first, third, and top floors, quickly became a three-alarm blaze, and drew 30 fire vehicles and over 100 firefighters to the scene.

An investigation into the fire revealed

EMPLOYMENT

SERVICE

Job Training and Placement

Service that works.

STRIVE is a training and placement agency for inner-city adults who have had trouble entering or remaining in the job market—primarily public aid recipients and public housing residents. It puts candidates through a rigorous three-week training program to arm them with the skills and attitudes they need to find and keep jobs.

"Unlike most other job programs, STRIVE accords all applicants and graduates a long-term commitment to its graduates," said Steve Redfield, executive director of STRIVE, "we pledge to help them back into placement and advancement. It is this personal commitment that enables STRIVE to succeed where other programs have failed."

STRIVE began in New York in 1985, expanded to Pittsburgh in 1988, and is a high prob-

"The Green Corps will provide equipment, labor and plants to help people in the community achieve their projects."

MSPDC hired six community residents (1 leader and 5 crew members) to provide extra help for a period of 14 weeks that began August 15th. Besides the tasks they perform, the Green Corps will also participate in training and educational seminars presented by local experts in the fields of horticulture and arboriculture.

In turn, MSPDC Open Space Chairman, Ginn Pippin said, "This community beautification program will help people start new gardens and spruce up old ones. The Green Corps program also provides an opportunity for employment and training in an occupation that's ripe for new entrepreneurs."

block of Champlain, where Orr was killed, said her son, Lorenzo Allen, was shot in the neck last year, at almost the same location.

"I can't take (the killings) no more. Oh, this hurts so much. If I could stop the killings I would. They have no business killing these babies. They have a lot of life to live."

Goodall said she had to "hit the ground" because someone shot at her a day prior to Orr's funeral.

"It's bad around here and it's getting worse. 45th & Champlain is nothing but another Vietnam," she said.
