Get the support you need today for all of your teaching and learning needs.

We'll make your unique teaching idea a reality.

Need something special? CCNMTL will help you create flexible tools and engaging study environments to fit your particular educational goals. Our past projects, some of which have garnered awards, have emphasized student collaboration, interaction, inquiry, creation of new knowledge, and better communication among you and your students.

Lean on our know-how.

Design Research—our iterative cycle of exploration, development and assessment—is the underlying philosophy of our unique educational technology efforts. Our methodology has informed over 200 projects. We're confident that we can help you, too.

There's always something going on—just for you.

We host a variety of special events to provide you with opportunities for learning and networking. Our regular workshops will help you learn and master the latest in teaching technologies. Special events—including the Fall Premiere, the New Media in Education Conference, and the University Seminar on New Media Teaching and Learning—feature inspirational educational technology ideas from the Columbia community and around the world.

We'll connect you with real-world educational technology professionals.

CCNMTL forms strategic partnerships with departments, institutes, and centers both on campus and beyond. We are able to leverage expertise in diverse fields and create competitive grant submissions.

Our strategic initiatives extend the scope and reach of our work. They focus on the integration of digital technologies and media in education with full cognizance of global issues and Columbia University's interests.
